From the tooltip for that option, this is expected behavior. It's not meant to parse all user messages and color any found nicknames. It just means it will color the nickname in join messages, part messages, quit messages, and the such.

Closing as OP has not responded (over 6 months) and appeared to be a misunderstanding of the feature.

For what it's worth, I would like to color nicknames in all messages (perhaps an additional option), I just hadn't figured out how yet :)

Though closing this as a bug report is accurate, it is a good feature request.
