Description
As you (I hope) can see from the attached screenshot, when hovering over Quassel, I get the correct icon (Quassel is hovered), but otherwise I get a really odd one (Quassel (Client only) is not hovered). This may be an artifact of me stripping one to many icons from the Kubuntu package. What am I missing?

OK, so looking at some more of the artwork, I'm starting to wonder which icon is intended? If it's all supposed to be the blue donut, then the hover icon is wrong. I also still have the eyeball in my systray. What's is supposed to be?

Blue donut is the new Oxygen icon for Quassel. Eyeball should be mostly gone - we still have a closed eyeball for disconnected Quassel and probably for "Highlight arrived", but we hope Nuno ships replacement icons before 0.4.

As for the hover stuff, no idea. Could be you still have the old icon in some path, or maybe some caching is going on - KIconLoader seems to do strange stuff sometimes. Could be working after a re-login or something.

I blame this on KDE icon caching. Rejected unless it's still a problem, then please reopen.
