Description

Sometimes people change their nickname or are forced to do so because of a disconnection and when querying them it makes a long long list of chats in the client.
Having most people a few times in the list, I think it would be nice if we could merge the backlogs into only one to save some space and making things more organized.

This is already possible.

To merge two queries on the same networ simply drag and drop one of them onto the other.

You're also able to rename a query by double clicking on it in case Quassel missed the nickchange.
