Description it would be nice, if the tray icon would change its appearance to display some status information, e.g.: current user status *connected to all networks / just been disconnected from one network * online / away * buffer information *new highlighted chatlines any other kind of activity display messages addressed to the user in a pop-up as often used by other applications. *mac os x: adium and many others use growl (http://growl.info/applications.php) *windows: bubble pop up from the tray icon *linux: should have something similar

This has been fixed a while ago already, though we might want to have different animations or something :)
